

NOT TODAY

THE COMPLETE MANUAL · RESEARCH + PLAN + CONTRACT

Everything in this document comes from one place: a man who has fought this for 20 years with oaths, lost every round, and finally stopped fighting at midnight. It contains the research on what actually works, the plan built for his exact life — office desk, car, house alone — and the contract he signs with a witness.

How to use it: read Part 1 once, slowly. Sign the contract in Part 6 in daylight, with your witness. Then live Parts 2–5 mechanically. When it gets hard, read the closing page.

“The man who promises ‘never again’ has already lost.
The man who says ‘not today’ cannot lose —
because he only ever has to win one day.”

CONTENTS

Part 1 — The Deep Research: what 20 years did, why oaths fail, what actually works	2
Part 2 — The 3 Laws (non-negotiable, forever)	4
Part 3 — The Complete Daily Plan: armor, drill, slip protocol, 90-day map	4
Part 4 — Built for Your Life: office, home alone, and the car	7
Part 5 — The Phone Lockdown: one device, exact steps, the 9 am trade fix	8
Part 6 — The 60-Day No-Screens Plan + The Contract (sign here)	10
The Closing Truth — read this when it gets hard	13

THE DEEP RESEARCH – WHAT 20 YEARS ACTUALLY DID

1. Your brain isn't broken. It adapted.

- Reward downregulation / desensitization. Repeated supernormal stimulation makes the reward system turn down dopamine signaling. That is why ordinary life — workouts, food, people, even real desire — feels gray. This is the numbness you described. It is a documented adaptation, and it is reversible.
- The craving circuit is over-trained; the brake is under-trained. A 2025 brain-imaging study (Frontiers in Human Neuroscience) on porn addiction found hyperactive salience/attention networks and inhibited control regions. Twenty years built a superhighway for wanting and let the road for stopping grow over.
- Wanting ≠ liking (incentive salience). The single most important idea in addiction neuroscience: your brain learned to want porn intensely while liking it less and less. You said it yourself: “I still want it, and it makes me numb.” That is not weakness. That is the signature of a conditioned cue→craving loop.
- Attentional bias. EEG studies show the attention of heavy users is captured by sexual cues automatically — before any “choice” happens. The loop fires in seconds, from cues: the empty room, the late hour, the phone in the hand, stress, boredom.
- The anhedonia is why you quit working out. Exercise releases normal-size rewards. Next to a supernormal stimulus, normal feels like nothing. You did not get lazy — your reward baseline was dragged so high that reality stopped registering. Remove the stimulus, reintroduce real rewards, and the baseline comes back down.

2. The diagnosis debate (so you don't fight ghosts)

“Porn addiction” is not in the DSM; clinicians use Compulsive Sexual Behavior Disorder (ICD-11) or Problematic Pornography Use. And research by Grubbs shows moral self-condemnation (“I’m disgusting”) drives perceived addiction at least as much as volume of use. What this means for you: the shame layer is fuel, not cure. The cycle “I’m disgusting → I escape into porn → more disgust” is a self-condemnation loop, and the research points at the shame itself as a maintenance mechanism.

3. Why every oath failed – this is proven, not motivational talk

The Abstinence Violation Effect (Marlatt & Gordon, the founders of relapse prevention): when you break an all-or-nothing commitment, you make internal, stable, global attributions — “I’m weak, I always fail, everything is ruined.” That attribution converts one slip into a full collapse. The oath is the machinery that manufactures this effect. A “never again” promise has zero margin: the moment of a slip, your own mind declares the project dead, and the shame demands anesthesia — which is porn.

THE CYCLE

Oath → white-knuckle → slip → shame storm (AVE) → “I’m hopeless” → binge → new oath

Each cycle entrenches the belief that you can't win. Twenty years of this = thousands of repetitions of the failure ritual. The oath is not your ally. It is the trapdoor.

Shame vs self-compassion — the data is one-sided. Meta-analyses and reviews consistently find: shame predicts worse outcomes and deeper relapse; self-compassion is a protective factor that predicts sustained recovery. Self-compassion is not letting yourself off — it is the attitude that survives a slip and keeps you in the fight.

What is NOT supported (so you don't waste years): NoFap/90-day-reboot as an identity project. A preregistered study (Prause et al.) found more forum engagement correlated with worse depression/ED symptoms. “Dopamine detox” is not a supported protocol. What survives from that world: removing the stimulus for weeks does help reset reward sensitivity. Keep the mechanism, drop the cult.

4. What the evidence says actually works – ranked

INTERVENTION	EVIDENCE	WHAT YOU TAKE FROM IT
1. CBT — cognitive-behavioral therapy	Strongest evidence for compulsive sexual behavior. Review of trials: “especially, evidence for the efficacy of CBT is present.” Pilot RCT reduced hypersexual behavior and depression.	Functional analysis: map every slip — trigger → thought → feeling → behavior → consequence. Log urges like production error logs.

2. MBRP — mindfulness-based relapse prevention	Pilot trial specifically for CSBD showed promise. Core technique: urge surfing (Marlatt; Bowen & Marlatt 2009).	Cravings rise, peak in ~15–30 minutes, and fall on their own. Suppression backfires. Watch the wave; don't fight or obey it.
3. ACT — acceptance & commitment therapy	Meta-analysis supports it for addictive disorders.	Stop arguing with the urge. Recommit to values in its presence: "The urge is here. I'm still going for my walk."
4. Exercise	Aerobic exercise raises BDNF (brain repair protein), restores prefrontal control, and directly reduces craving intensity.	Not fitness — medicine. This is how the numbness lifts. 3–4 hard sessions/week minimum.
5. Environment design + accountability	Field survey of 1,865 users: 66% of accountability-software users quit within 30 days vs 19% with blocking alone.	Observed behavior changes; secrecy preserves addiction. One witness is the highest-leverage move in the whole plan.
6. Implementation intentions (Gollwitzer)	Meta-analysis effect size $d = 0.65$ — one of the most robust effects in psychology.	Pre-decide: "IF urge at desk, THEN 20 pushups + walk." Write your own exception handlers. No willpower at the moment.

If solo stalls at week 6: structured 8–12 session CBT, or free anonymous peer groups (SMART Recovery, SAA). Not therapy in the clinical sense — a room of people with the same problem. The #1 predictor of beating this is not willpower. It is not doing it alone.

THE 3 LAWS – NON-NEGOTIABLE, FOREVER

LAW 1 — NO VOWS. ONLY TODAY. No “never again,” no streak worship, no grand declarations. A slip is data, not death. Every morning your only job is: not today. Tomorrow, win tomorrow.

LAW 2 — NEVER MISS TWICE. One slip is a data point. Two in a row is a collapse. The gap between slip #1 and slip #2 is where this war is won or lost. Close it to zero.

LAW 3 — NO SECRECY. One human being knows everything, every day. Addiction lives in secrecy and dies in witness. The nightly check-in is not optional — not after a good day, not after a slip. Especially after a slip.

THE COMPLETE DAILY PLAN

Day 0 – Armor (one-time actions; they outsource your willpower)

- ☐ DNS blocker (NextDNS — free) on laptop, phone AND router. Block adult categories. Hand the admin password to your witness.
- ☐ Kill incognito/private browsing on every device.
- ☐ Separate work browser profile — clean, history ON.
- ☐ Delete everything: bookmarks, saved content, apps, downloads. All of it.
- ☐ Phone leaves the room every time you sit at the desk.
- ☐ Phone sleeps in the kitchen. Buy an alarm clock.
- ☐ Tell one human (a friend you respect — not a partner): “I’m quitting porn for good. Can I send you one line every night — clean or slipped? I don’t need advice, just witness.” Fix a time. Send the first line tonight.

The Daily Protocol

Morning: wake at a fixed time (phone is not in the bedroom) · 10 min sunlight within 30 min of waking (regulates dopamine/cortisol) · cold shower, 30 sec–2 min · walk 20–30 min (weeks 1–2) → hard workout 3–4x/week from week 3. This is medicine, not fitness.

Work day: phone in another room · clean profile only · urge hits → run the Drill. Every time. No “small peek.”

Evening: laptop shut by a fixed time (10:30 pm) · phone to the kitchen · one-line check-in to your witness · log any urge/slip in 3 lines: time, place, mood/trigger. Data, not confession.

The Urge Drill – Memorize This (the core skill)

1. NAME IT: “This is the urge. Dopamine asking. It peaks in 15–30 minutes and dies. I don’t have to obey it.”
2. SURF IT: don’t fight it, don’t obey it — watch it. Locate it in the body. Breathe through the peak. Urges are waves: they rise, peak in ~20 minutes, and crash — whether you act or not. Suppression makes them stronger. Observation kills them.
3. MOVE: 20 pushups. Cold water on the face. Walk out of the room. Motion ends the wave.
4. FIRE THE IF-THEN: read it out loud. Execute. No decision, no negotiation.

Pre-Written IF-THEN Plans (tape on desk, fridge, car dashboard)

- IF urge at desk → THEN close laptop, 20 pushups, walk 5 min outside.
- IF urge after 10 pm → THEN phone to kitchen, cold shower, sleep.
- IF urge + stress/boredom → THEN call or walk — never touch a screen.
- IF hand reaches for incognito → THEN stand up and leave the room. Instantly.

The Slip Protocol – Pre-Written, Because Slips Will Come

1. No oath. No drama. No “I’m filthy.” (That is the relapse engine. Starve it.)
2. 3-line log: time, mood, trigger.
3. Leave the room. Shower. Walk.
4. Back on the run the same day.
5. Tell your witness tonight: “Slipped. Day 0. Back at it.”
6. Never miss twice. One slip = data. The second = the old cycle has you again.

The 90-Day Map – So It Never Ambushes You

PHASE	DAYS	WHAT’S HAPPENING	YOUR JOB
Withdrawal	1–14	Urges peak, mood swings, restlessness. Hardest part.	Follow protocol mechanically. Win each day.
The Flatline	15–30	Numbness, low libido, boredom, “this isn’t working.”	This is recovery, not failure. Fill the void: workouts, sunlight, humans. Boredom = reward system recalibrating.
Recalibration	31–60	Urges weaken. Real life starts feeling good again.	3–4 workouts/week minimum. One real human contact weekly.
The Shift	61–90	You stop being “a man quitting” and become “a man who doesn’t.”	Keep the architecture. Consider the witness permanent.

Rules of Engagement

- No negotiation with the urge. “Just a peek” is a relapse. Zero peeks. The first seconds decide everything.
- Never test yourself. You don’t look to “see if it still tempts you.” That is the addiction asking for permission.
- Night is the danger zone. All decisions get made before 9 pm — the environment does the night-shift. Willpower sleeps.
- Sunday review, 10 minutes: read the urge log. Find the pattern. Write ONE new if-then for the biggest trigger.

BUILT FOR YOUR LIFE — OFFICE, HOUSE ALONE, AND THE CAR

You have three zones, and they are not equal:

ZONE	DANGER LEVEL	WHY
Office	Medium	People around, structure — but a desk, a browser, long hours.
Home	EXTREME	Alone + internet + darkness + 20 years of conditioning. This is where you lose.
Car	Your weapon	A mobile escape pod. Almost no addict has this. Use it.

The single insight that wins this: the entire war happens in one window — 8 pm to 1 am, at home, alone. That window is what 20 years of relapses have in common. Win that window every night for 90 days and you win. So the plan becomes: be a man who is never home during the danger hours, and whose home is armored for the hours he must be there.

Zone 1 — The Office (daytime armor)

- Work browser: clean profile, history ON. Never a corner desk with a hidden screen.
- Phone in the bag/locker — not the desk, not the pocket.
- Never be the last man in the office. You leave when the room empties.
- Lunch = walk or gym. Never eat at the desk with a screen.
- The commute is the pivot: office → gym directly → home. Never office → home first. This one habit kills the deadliest hour of your day.

Zone 2 — Home (the fortress)

- Router-level DNS blocking covers every device in the house. Lock yourself out of the admin panel — password with your witness, or sealed in an envelope at the office.
- Accountability software, not just blocking — it is the one built for living alone (66% vs 19% — see Part 1). You can't uninstall it without the witness knowing.
- Incognito off. Everything saved, deleted.
- The laptop curfew: 9:30 pm, laptop goes in its bag, zipped, in another room. Not the bed, not the nightstand.
- Phone's home is the kitchen. Always. Bedroom has zero screens, permanently. The 11 pm hour alone in bed with a screen is the exact scene of 20 years of losses.

Zone 3 — The Car (your escape pod)

- IF urge hits at home at night → THEN keys in hand, drive 10 minutes, call your witness from the car. The car breaks the cue loop: body moves, hands busy, environment changes, a voice on the phone. Urges die in motion.
- IF weekend night alone and restless → THEN gym or a long highway drive with an audiobook, not the couch. Weekend nights are your highest-risk hours. Plan them on Thursday.
- Keep the car ready: keys by the door, fuel above half. The escape must be faster than the urge.
- The drive home must pass the gym. Change the route so you pass through it — you will not detour to it.

The 30-Day Evening Timetable — Your Only Real Job

TIME	ACTION
Office ends	Straight to gym (or walk/run). Never home first.
7:30–8:30	Workout. Hard enough to breathe. This is medicine — it drains the urge at its source.
8:30–9:15	Dinner — outside or at home, screens away. Eat, shower, cold water.
9:15–9:30	One-line check-in to your witness. Done.
9:30	Laptop in bag, other room. Phone to kitchen. Watch off the wrist.

9:30–10:15	Physical book, stretch, plan tomorrow. No screens.
10:30	Lights out. Alarm clock wakes you.

THE WHOLE NIGHT IS DECIDED BY 9:30 PM. You don't resist urges at 11:30 — you made them impossible at 9:30. That's the entire secret.

The Loneliness Fix – This Is the Fuel Line, Not Decoration

A man alone for 20 years doesn't just use porn for dopamine — he uses it as a companion. Blocking the behavior without replacing the companionship is why solo attempts fail.

- Daily: one phone call, 10 minutes minimum, to a real human. Scheduled, not “if I feel like it.” A voice on the phone is the antidote to a screen.
- Weekly: one in-person meeting — dinner, chai, a drive. Non-negotiable.
- One group: gym class, running club, badminton court, weekend trek group. You don't need friends — you need scheduled humans. Connection follows showing up.
- The witness is permanent. One line every night, forever. Never miss a check-in — not after a good day, not after a slip. Especially after a slip.

THE PHONE LOCKDOWN – ONE DEVICE, EXACT STEPS, AND THE 9 AM TRADE FIX

You don't have three vulnerable devices. You have ONE: the phone. The laptops are already clean. Every defense in the world only has to be built around a single device — the best possible position to fight from. And your 9 am trading need doesn't conflict with anything: the danger window is 9:30 pm–2 am. Trading is 9:00 am. They never meet.

The Phone Contract – Working Hours and a Jail Cell

TIME	WHERE THE PHONE LIVES
8:55 am	Lockbox opens (timer set the night before). Phone out.
9:00 am	Trading check — on the laptop (see below). Phone supplies the OTP only.
Daytime	Calls, trading, WhatsApp — a work tool. Never private browsing.
9:30 pm	Phone INTO the lockbox. Timer set to 8:55 am. Done.

Buy the timed lockbox today — Amazon.in: “Kitchen Safe / kSafe Time Locking Container” (standard 5.5-inch or the phone-safe mini). Set the dial, press the button, and it cannot be opened until the timer hits zero. No override. No key. No willpower required. For a man living alone, this box is the guardian. It never sleeps, never judges, never forgets. Between 9:30 pm and 8:55 am the phone is physically unreachable — not “I shouldn't,” but cannot.

The 9 am Trade Check – Verified: It Works on the Laptop

Zerodha Kite has a full web platform — kite.zerodha.com — login straight from your clean laptop browser. Yes, Kite web asks for a 2FA code that arrives in the Kite mobile app or SMS. That's fine: the OTP exchange happens at 9 am, in daylight, for 60 seconds, while you're getting ready for work. Phone out at 8:55, OTP duty, normal workday. The porn pathway is a night-rage phenomenon; your trade check is a morning ritual. They never meet.

Phone Lockdown – Exact Steps (verified)

If iPhone (strongest free option that exists):

1. Settings → Screen Time → Content & Privacy Restrictions → ON
2. → Web Content → “Allowed Websites Only” → add ONLY your broker (kite.zerodha.com), your bank, work portals
3. Screen Time → Use Screen Time Passcode → set it → give it to your witness
4. This kills private browsing, blocks app installs/deletes, and Safari refuses everything else. The OS enforces it — not your willpower.

If Android:

1. Settings → Network & Internet → Private DNS → your NextDNS address (free at nextdns.io, 5 minutes)
2. In the NextDNS dashboard: block “Porn” and “Dating” categories — filters every app, not just browsers
3. Same NextDNS servers on the home router — covers the whole house
4. Delete every browser. PIN-lock the survivor with a code your witness holds. Parental-controls PIN → witness holds it.

Both phones: delete the pipelines — Instagram/Reddit/Twitter feeds on the phone if any ever led you in. The phone's job is now: calls, WhatsApp, OTPs, camera, trading. A terminal, not a gateway.

The Second Witness – Accountability App (with an honest note)

- Ever Accountable: $14.99/mo or $129/yr, unlimited devices; its current iOS build sees in-app content on iPhone — strongest in the category.
- Covenant Eyes: the established alternative; slightly pricier for single users.
- Honest note: both bill in USD — an international-enabled card may be needed from India. If payment fails, don't stall: the lockbox + the whitelist + the nightly human check-in is already a complete fortress. The app is reinforcement, not the foundation.

THE 60-DAY NO-SCREENS PLAN – THE DEEP THINK, ALL FOUR CRACKS, AND THE FIXES

The verdict: yes, this works – it is the strongest plan you have ever designed

You designed yourself a DIY residential treatment program. In addiction treatment, the interventions with the strongest outcomes remove the person from the using environment; outpatient white-knuckle attempts — which is what every oath for 20 years has been — have the weakest. Your plan makes home a place where the behavior is physically impossible, not merely forbidden.

It also changes the nature of the battle. For 20 years the war was hourly — a thousand micro-decisions, each demanding willpower at the exact moment you were weakest. This plan replaces them with one binary decision per day, made at the door, in daylight, when you're strong:

"IS THIS A SCREEN? THEN IT DOES NOT CROSS THIS DOOR."

Crack #1 – "Until I am clean for 60 days" is a vow. Vows are your relapse engine.

The day you slip, the vow will announce: "the condition is broken, the 60 days are void, nothing matters." That is the Abstinence Violation Effect — the exact mechanism that has converted your every broken oath into a full collapse for two decades.

THE FIX — sign a contract, not a vow. Same energy, completely different psychology. The contract says: "For 60 days, no screen device crosses my door. A slip is not a reset. A slip triggers the protocol. Only quitting is failure." It is witnessed — your accountability person reads it, signs it, holds a copy. If you bring a phone home on day 12, that's not the end: text the witness that night, device goes back, day 13 continues. The clock doesn't reset. You are not earning clean days — you are running a 60-day experiment on your own brain.

Crack #2 – The phone problem. If the smartphone crosses the door "just for Swiggy tonight," the plan dies that night.

THE FIX — one purchase: a dumb phone. ₹1,200–1,500 Nokia-style feature phone. Calls, texts, torch, radio. No browser, no video, no apps — no capability at all. This is the only device allowed inside your house for 60 days.

- Swiggy/bookings/payments: done in daylight, before you leave office. Order dinner for pickup or schedule delivery, pay bills from office, UPI before 9 pm. If it can't be done before 9 pm, it doesn't happen that day. Cooking is now part of your recovery — it fills evening hours and your stomach without a screen.
- The 9 am OTP for trading: office territory anyway. The smartphone lives at the office — locker, bag, desk. It wakes up there. It sleeps there.
- Emergencies and family: the dumb phone handles them. You are never unreachable.
- The car question — subtle, so listen: if the smartphone comes home in the car, the car is parked outside, and at 11:30 pm a 30-second walk is nothing to a craving. The smartphone never even rides home. Office locker overnight. Not the car.

THE HOUSE RULE, IN ONE SENTENCE: Nothing with a screen or a browser crosses the door. Dumb phone: allowed. Speaker/radio for music and audiobooks: allowed — sound fills silence, and silence is the enemy. Alarm clock: allowed. Screens: never. For 60 days, your house has no eyes.

Crack #3 – You're removing the drug but not installing a life.

A home with zero screens, zero prepared activities, and a man alone in it, is a home where boredom becomes its own trigger. You're not just quitting porn — you're quitting the companionship it faked. Stock the house like you're moving to a cabin for two months:

- 5 physical books, bought this week. One of them a gripping page-turner. Read every night.

- A notebook and pen on the table. Urge log and journal. The writing hand cannot scroll.
- A printed bodyweight workout sheet — pushups, squats, plank, mobility.
- Food you have to cook. Cooking is activity, ritual, and reward.
- A printed copy of the evening timetable, taped to the fridge.

The first 5–7 days will be rough: restlessness, boredom, racing mind, trouble sleeping. That’s not the plan failing. That’s a 20-year wiring job being unwound. Sleep gets better after the first week — no blue light, no midnight dopamine — and better sleep is itself anti-relapse.

Crack #4 – Day 61. The cliff at the end of the 60 days.

Plans like this quietly die because nobody designs the return trip. If on day 61 the phone and laptop come home with no rules, the old loop reactivates in a week. The re-entry is staged, and it is part of the contract you sign before Day 1:

PERMANENT HOUSE LAWS — FROM DAY 61 ONWARD

1. Days 61–90: phone may come home — only inside the timed lockbox. Laptop home only for daylight work, at a table. Never the bedroom.
2. Forever: no screen ever crosses into the bedroom. The bedroom is a device-free sanctuary — the scene of 20 years of losses, sealed permanently.
3. Forever: after 9:30 pm the house has no screens. This is not a 60-day experiment — it is the permanent design of a sane life.
4. Forever: the nightly check-in continues. The dumb phone stays. A man who needs no witness is a man in danger.

The Contract

TERMS — READ EACH LINE ALOUD BEFORE SIGNING

1. For 60 days, no screen device — phone, laptop, tablet, anything with a browser or a screen — crosses the door of my house. Day 1 is the first full day after signing. The clock runs whether I am perfect or not.
2. A slip is not a reset. If a device crosses the door, I remove it immediately, I text my witness that night, and the plan continues the next day. I am not earning clean days — I am running a 60-day experiment on my own brain.
3. The only devices permitted inside my house: a dumb phone (calls and texts only), a speaker/radio, an alarm clock. That is the complete list.
4. My smartphone and laptop live at the office — locker or desk — not in my car, not in my house. The car is for gym trips and escape drives, not for storing the gateway.
5. Every night I send one line to my witness: “Day __, clean” or “Slipped, back on it.” No exceptions, no elaboration required.
6. Only quitting is failure. The contract is broken only if I stop sending the check-in, or stop trying. Slipping is part of the experiment. Stopping is the only violation.
7. On Day 61, the permanent house laws become binding.

SIGNED (me) — in daylight, not at midnight

DATE

WITNESSED BY — the person who holds my keys

DATE

WITNESS’S JOB: hold the passcodes/PINs. Receive one line every night. If the check-in stops for 48 hours, you call. That is the entire job.

The Penal Code — What Happens When a Rule Breaks

Consequences are pre-agreed, verified by the witness, and paid in distance and disclosure — never in shame. Shame is fuel for the relapse engine. Your own system already knew this: a miss is paid in distance, not death. Set the exact kilometre numbers with your witness at signing.

#	VIOLATION	CONSEQUENCE
---	-----------	-------------

1	A screen device crosses the door (or rides home in the car)	Device out the same night . Witness text: "Rule broke. Device out. Continuing." 10 km walk/run within 48h. Clock does NOT reset .
2	A slip (use)	No oath, no drama. 3-line log. 20 km within 48h. Back on the run the same day. Clock keeps running.
3	A missed nightly check-in	The most dangerous — it is secrecy . Witness calls you. You answer. Contract re-read aloud, in person, within 7 days. 30 km .
4	Never-miss-twice broken (2 slips in 7 days)	Voice call (not text) to witness that night. Gym every day for 7 days . 50 km that week.

NEVER-PUNISHMENTS: self-hate words, restarting the clock, new oaths, cancelling the plan, and public exposure — no slip is ever posted to social media. Those are not consequences — they are fuel for the old cycle. Proof of kilometres goes to your witness — Strava screenshot, photo, whatever is real. Distance, verified.

The Bed Protocol – Bored, Alone, Mind Spinning in Bed

This is the scene of 20 years of losses — so the plan never lets it assemble: phone in the lockbox, laptop bagged, body tired from the gym. What remains is a different scene: you, a book, and sleep.

- THE BED LAW: bed is for sleep. Nothing else. Awake for 20 minutes → get up. The bed is your strongest cue — only enter it when sleepy.
- THE 11 PM PLAY: mind spins → say aloud "This is the wave" → stand up NOW → cold water, 20 pushups → book in the living room for 15 min → return only when eyes are heavy. Every repetition, the wave is weaker. It peaks and dies in 15–30 minutes whether you feed it or not.
- BIOLOGY IS NOT THE ENEMY: the enemy is porn + the compulsion loop + shame. Release without a screen is not the thing ruining your life. But: never with a screen, never as the start of a chain toward porn, and in the first 30 days, not in bed. Zero shame — shame is fuel.
- THE REAL DANGER IS THE CHAIN: release → craving → phone → porn. Break it at the first link. That is what "never miss twice" exists for.
- IT WEAKENS FAST (cue extinction): the bed scene loses power once the screen never appears in it. Week 1 is hard; by week 4, 11 pm is boring-sleepy, not dangerous. The brain unlearns what the environment stops providing.

THE FINAL OPERATING SYSTEM – THE OUTBOUND LIFE

This is the strongest version of the plan: work happens only where humans are, the house is a screen-free sanctuary, and the phone exists only during market hours.

ZONE	RULE
Laptop	Never enters the house. Office or cafe only. Travels with you; sleeps at the office.
Smartphone	9:00 am – 3:30 pm only (markets close at 3:30). After close: office vault. Card OTPs arrive on the laptop via email.
Dumb phone	Always with you. The only device that crosses the door.
Apple Watch	On the wrist by day only — cellular, standalone, never a tether that pulls the phone near the house . Off the wrist at 9:30 pm, charges in the kitchen, Do Not Disturb at night. A GPS-only watch is just a watch at home — never an excuse for the phone.
House	Dumb phone, alarm clock, speaker (audio only). Nothing with a screen. Default permanent.
Evenings	Gym → out → home only to eat and sleep. Packed food is the fuel.
Weekends	Planned on Thursday. Humans + exhaustion + exploration. Never the couch.
The one constant	One call a day, initiated by you. One line to the witness every night.

THE EXCEPTION PROTOCOL (instead of “never ever”): the default is permanent. If an exception is ever forced — illness, emergency, festival — the device stays in the bag, daylight-only, witness told that night, default resumes the next day. The rule is not broken by an exception — it is confirmed by the return to it. Only quitting is failure.

THE ISOLATION RULE: care is built by showing up, not by waiting to be called. One call a day, initiated by you. One in-person meet a week. One group — gym class, running club, badminton, treks. A man alone in a cafe is still alone; the cafe solves the where, the fuel line solves the who.

THE HOUSE RULE – EXCEPTIONS AND PENALTIES

The Rule

No electronics enter the house. The complete allowed list inside: dumb phone, alarm clock, speaker (audio only), and the Apple Watch by day (off the wrist at 9:30 pm). Every other device — laptop, smartphone, tablet, anything with a screen — stays outside the door. Permanently.

The Exceptions – a closed list

An exception is something forced from outside, not chosen. The test: would a reasonable witness agree you had no choice? If yes → exception. If no → violation.

EXCEPTION	WHAT'S ALLOWED	HOW IT ENDS
1. Physical illness/injury	Laptop for essential work only, daylight, at the table. Never the bedroom.	The moment you can leave the house again
2. Family/medical emergency	Device for the emergency only. Witness told immediately.	When the emergency ends
3. Lockdown/curfew/disaster	Work from home only if forced.	When the closure ends
4. Festival closure (office + cafes shut)	Pre-announced to witness. Daylight-only, at the table.	When places reopen
5. Critical work incident	Only if the witness agrees. Max 48 hours. Logged.	When resolved, or 48h — whichever is first

NOT exceptions (always violations): boredom · rain · tiredness · weekend laziness · wanting company · checking markets after 3:30 · “just this once.” Those are choices, and choices get penalties.

The Exception Protocol – 6 steps, every time

1. Tell the witness first — before or immediately: “Exception: [reason]. Device in by [time], out by [time].”
2. Device stays in the bag. Daylight use only. At the table. Never the bedroom.
3. Never after 9:30 pm. The night is sacred — no exception touches it.
4. Log it: 3 lines in the notebook (reason, time, duration).
5. It expires: the moment the forcing condition ends, the default resumes — same day if possible.
6. Review: a repeated exception stops being an exception and becomes a violation. The witness decides.

The Penalties – added to the Penal Code

#	VIOLATION	PENALTY
1	Device crosses the door (no use)	Out the same night + witness text + 10 km within 48h. Clock keeps running.

2	Device used inside the house (daylight, non-exception)	20 km + voice call (not text) to witness + that device confined to the office for 7 days.
3	Device in the bedroom, or used after 9:30 pm	30 km + voice call + contract re-read in person + gym every day for 7 days. This is the sacred zone.
4	Faked exception (lying to the witness)	30 km + contract re-read in person + no exceptions allowed for 30 days — no matter what happens.
5	Same violation 3 times in 30 days	Escalation: in-person meeting with the witness, plan revision, one peer-group meeting that month.

Debts are paid in walk, run, or cycle — outdoors, verified (Strava/photo to the witness). Cycling counts half: 2 km cycling = 1 km of debt. Never punished with: shame, a reset clock, or new oaths. No slip is ever posted publicly — disclosure goes to the witness and the witness alone.

SHOPPING LIST — COMPLETE BEFORE DAY 1

- ☐ Dumb phone (₹1,200–1,500) ☐ Alarm clock ☐ 5 physical books (one gripping page-turner) ☐ Notebook + pen
- ☐ Speaker/radio ☐ Kitchen Safe timed lockbox — order now, it's for Day 61 ☐ Printed bodyweight workout sheet
- ☐ This document, printed, on the fridge

DAY 0 CHECKLIST — DO ALL OF THIS BEFORE DAY 1

- ☐ Sign the contract with your witness. They keep a copy.
- ☐ Armor the smartphone (whitelist / NextDNS / no browsers) and leave it at the office.
- ☐ Set up the dumb phone. Give the number to family and your witness.
- ☐ Stock the house: books, notebook, food to cook, speaker, workout sheet.
- ☐ Tape the timetable and the IF-THEN list to the fridge.
- ☐ Send the first check-in: "Day 0. Contract signed. Starting tomorrow."
- ☐ Tonight: last night with screens in the house. Notice how it feels. It is the last time.

THE 60-DAY TERRAIN — WHAT TO EXPECT

DAYS	WHAT'S HAPPENING	YOUR JOB
1–14 Withdrawal	Urges peak. Restlessness, racing mind, trouble sleeping. Boredom is loud.	Follow the timetable mechanically. Win each day.
15–30 The Flatline	Numbness, low mood, "this isn't working." The house feels empty.	This is recovery, not failure. Fill the void: workouts, sunlight, cooking, humans.
31–45 Recalibration	Urges weaken. Real things — food, workouts, people — start feeling good again. Sleep is deep.	3–4 hard workouts/week. One in-person human contact/week, minimum.
46–60 The Shift	You stop being "a man quitting" and become "a man who doesn't."	Keep the architecture. The structure did this — not your mood, not your virtue.

THE NIGHTLY CHECK-IN — THE ONE LINE THAT HOLDS EVERYTHING

"DAY __ , CLEAN" · OR · "SLIPPED. BACK ON IT."

Sent every night between 9:15 and 9:30 pm, from the dumb phone. Nothing more is required. Nothing less is accepted.

THE CLOSING TRUTH — READ THIS WHEN IT GETS HARD

For 20 years you fought this with oaths, and oaths demand strength at midnight — alone, in the dark, against a brain that spent two decades learning to want this. That was never a fair fight. You are not weak. You were outmatched by the arena. This plan changes the arena.

There is no midnight strength required anymore. There is only one decision, made in daylight, at a door: is this a screen? Then it stays outside. One decision a day. You can win one decision.

The first week will be rough. You will feel restless, bored, and sure that this is pointless. Read the Flatline row again when that happens: that feeling is the old wiring being unwound. It is the sound of 20 years coming loose. It passes.

And when a slip comes — it will, once or twice — you will meet it with the protocol: no oath, three lines in the notebook, out of the room, back on the run the same day, one honest text. Never miss twice. The slip is data. The silence after it is the only real danger.

The goal is not to become a man with no urges. It is to become a man whose urges are background noise. Every man who has quit this reports the same thing: the urges didn't vanish — they stopped mattering. That is not a promise. That is the measured outcome of 90 days of this protocol.

"I do not need to win 60 days.
I need to win today.
Tomorrow, I will win tomorrow.
NOT TODAY."

Signed on Day 0. The clock starts tomorrow. The house goes dark tonight.